Judging by the June we've had, watering is likely number one on the July yard and garden care "to do" list! Though many native Colorado plants and drought tolerant ornamentals (sometimes referred to as "xeriscape" plants) can tolerate Colorado's dry heat, most plants will need regular watering (a good soak at least once per week) in order to keep blooming and producing healthy growth. The lawn requires an average of 1-1.5" of water per week over the growing season. Watering outside the hours of 8 am-6 pm is ideal for absorption—watering during the heat of the day is a bad way to water plants and a great way to watch your water (and the money you spent on it) evaporate! Ensure all of your watering systems are functioning as intended regularly. Remain flexible, too! Avoid overwatering areas of the lawn or plants that receive a considerable amount of shade in your quest to keep the sunny spots looking nice. To save more water, consider running your irrigation system manually instead of on a set schedule, only turning on the zones when the plants show signs of drought stress. For a lawn, watch for "footprinting," where tracks remain in the lawn more than just a few minutes, or for a silvery cast to an otherwise green carpet.

In mid-July, it is time to pinch back fall-blooming perennials (like rudbeckia/brown-eyed Susan) one last time to encourage a full fall bloom. And as always, keep an eye out for pests. Plants that are stressed by heat and drought become more likely to show symptoms from pest or disease pressure, and no gardener wants to watch a plant wither just before peak harvest! Keep the fruit of plants such as zucchini, tomatoes, and berries harvested and they will continue yielding for the remainder of the season. If tomatoes seem to be slowing down in production generally, keep in mind they have trouble setting fruit when average temperatures consistently rise above 85 degrees. Shade cloth can work wonders in a vegetable garden during the peak heat of the growing season to give plants (and your water bill) a relief. Shade is also very helpful for those interested in sowing seeds for a fall crop of cool season veggies, such as lettuce, peas, or beets. Plant these no later than the first week of August to enjoy a harvest by the end of September.

Last but not least, after all that effort growing beautiful plants it is time to prepare your entry to the Douglas County Fair! Bring your flowers, houseplants, or terrariums to enter the floriculture contest, or your splendid veggies to the agriculture competition. Check in for entries begins Wednesday, July 29, and continues Thursday morning, July 30. Judging is open to the public at 2pm.

Covenant Corner

During routine inspections, it was observed that some homes may be in need of Exterior Painting, as one or more of the following conditions may be present: fading, exposed wood, bleeding, chipping, or peeling paint. The Association encourages homeowners to take a look at their property and begin making arrangements for any needed repairs or repainting.

Some driveways may also be in need of repair and/or replacement due to cracking, sinking, and/or displaced areas. The Association appreciates your attention in addressing any necessary repairs and/or replacements. Please take a moment to review the Community Covenants, Guidelines at www.ColliersHillMasterHOA.net and any applicable Resolutions regarding requirements for driveway repairs/replacements and exterior paint prior to scheduling work. Design Review approval is required before any work commences for projects involving changes or modifications.

As a reminder, cooler and rainy days are often the best conditions for weed control and manually hand-pulling weeds. Use those overcast days to tackle general routine upkeep and yard maintenance, including:

- Bed weeding
- Fertilizing
- Regular mowing
- Pruning and trimming
- Reviewing your water management program

(Definition of a weed: a plant held to have no value, especially one growing plentifully and detrimentally in a garden, lawn, or bed area.)

Please also take a moment to check your sprinkler system to ensure sprinkler heads and emitters are directed properly and functioning correctly. The Association appreciates your continued attention in maintaining your property and helping preserve the overall appearance of the community.
