Architectural Answers

With the cooler weather upon us, now is a good time to start planning your projects for next spring and summer. Requests are reviewed year-round. In fact, now is the best time to submit your request so that you are prepared for the next improvement season.

Some things to keep in mind when planning your next project:

While AI-generated plans and images are helpful in providing a visually pleasing idea of what is being requested, they are not accepted in lieu of a drawn and labeled plan.

For landscaping plans, you will still be required to provide a drawn plan that is either fully labeled or contains a legend. The plan/legend will need to include the proposed plant, bush, shrub, and flower types, locations, sizes, and quantities; ground coverage; proposed hardscape items; and existing items that will remain, along with current photos.

For hardscape item requests, elevation drawings, drawn and labeled plans that include dimensions, current photos, and images of proposed materials will be required.

In order to submit a request for review, you will need to provide a completed submittal form, which is available on the Association's website at www.thefarmhoa.com.

In order for the submittal form to be considered complete, the "Describe Improvement" section of the form must be completed.

Due to the wide range of requests submitted for review, the Community-Wide Standards do not specify what documentation is required for each type of request.

Please reach out to designreview@pcms.net directly for additional information regarding your request.

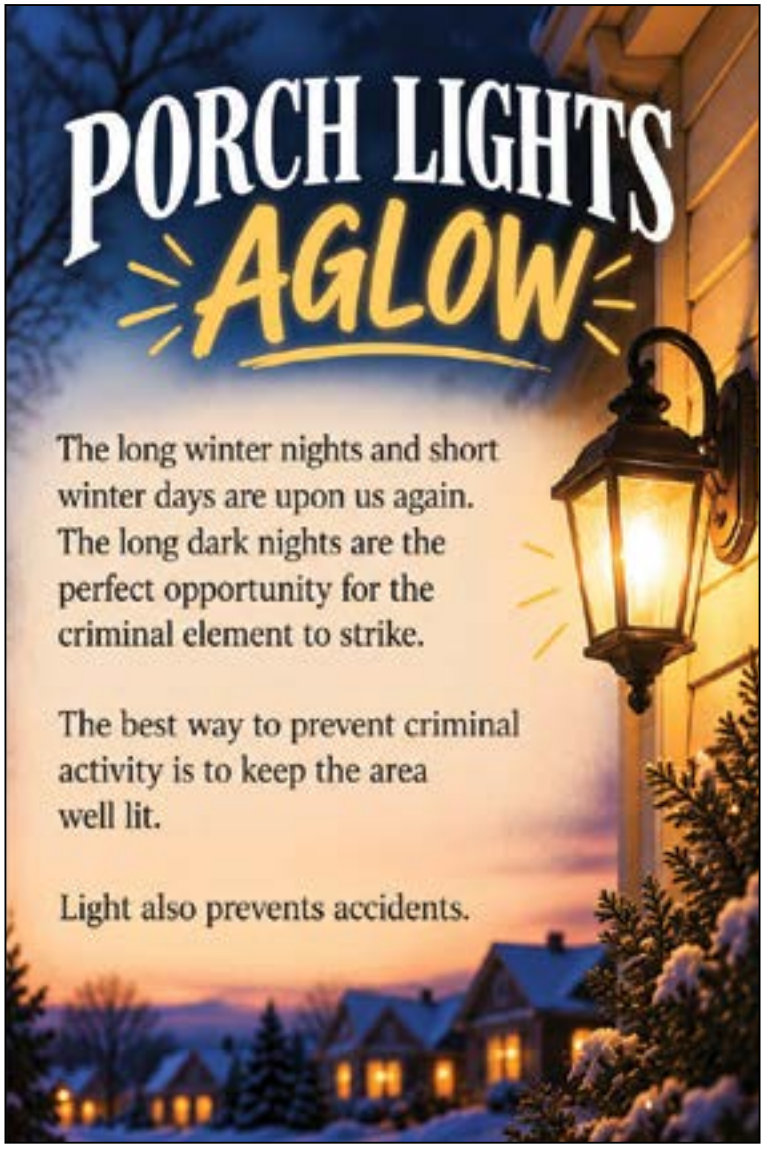

Design Review Board (DRB) Application Process

The Design Review Board (DRB) has established a structured process for the receipt, review, and response to all design review applications submitted to the management company.

Applications must be submitted by noon on either the first or third Friday of each month. Submissions are then distributed to the DRB the following Tuesday. The Board aims to provide responses by the third Friday of the month or the first Friday of the following month, depending on the submission date.

Please note that while the DRB strives to adhere to these turnaround times, the Governing Documents and Guidelines provide the DRB with up to 45 days to review applications. Homeowners should plan accordingly, as expedited review requests will not be accepted and review timelines are based on complete submissions being provided.

Once a decision has been made, a response letter may be mailed to the mailing address on file and will also be available through the old CINCWeb Axis homeowner portal at: pcms.cincwebaxis.com

There's still time to plant bulbs!

One of the harbingers of spring is prepared in fall–spring bulbs! Plants like tulips, daffodils, crocuses, and many others, are planted now for a brilliant spring display. Bulbs are underground storage structures, typically made of modified leaves. When planted and watered in the fall, they will stretch out roots and then, as soil temperatures warm in the spring, stems of cheerful flowers. Bulbs can bring color to Colorado gardens from late winter through summer.

Colorado's semi-arid continental climate shapes what grows well here. Winter temperatures regularly fall below 0°F, summers can exceed 100°F, and annual precipitation is commonly 10–25 inches. Intense sun and wind, along with local soil and moisture conditions, make plant selection and site choice important. Luckily, popular bulbs are adapted to conditions much like what is found across much of the state.

Well-drained, rocky sites suit plants such as Allium, Crocus, bulbous Iris, Scilla, Fritillaria, Tulipa, and Eremurus. These plants can tolerate completely dry conditions through the summer as long as the late winter and early spring provides enough moisture for flowering. They will even thrive in clay, provided it doesn't stay too wet in the summer, which can cause the bulbs to rot. Seasonally wet areas that dry out in summer can support Narcissus (daffodils), Hyacinthoides (bluebells), and Colorado native Erythronium (or dogtooth lily). These latter types often grow in woodlands in nature, and will thrive beneath landscape trees, where the tree roots will help keep them dry over the summer.

When shopping for bulbs, buy the largest you can find and carefully check them for signs of pests and disease. (Buying bulbs in a sealed box can make this challenging). Bulbs with soft spots or mold should not be planted.

Plant bulbs at least twice as deep as the bulb is high, or slightly deeper. Try to get the pointy end up (you should be able to see one side with dried roots, like an onion; this end goes down). If in doubt, plant them sideways. Bulbs do need ample water to establish and flower the following spring, so make sure to give them a soak after planting and, if conditions are dry, a drink when you see the first leaves beginning to appear above the ground. After flowering, let the leaves die back naturally to enable the plant to store up maximum resources for next year. This is not always particularly "scenic," so consider planting your bulbs toward the back of a bed or where other perennials can hide their departure.
